BACK TO FACE BITTER
"LOVE DEATH" TRIAL

WIDOW'S DAILY MARCH TO COURT

Her twice-a-day entrance of the courthouse has become a slow, draggy, monotonous process for Mrs. Hall. She is shown here on the right with Mrs. Edwin Carpenter, her cousin, entering the courthouse where she is on trial with two brothers for the murder of her pastor-husband and his choir singer.

'Bloodstains' on Suspect in Yt. Killing

CHEMIST TO ANALYZE SPOTS ON CLOTHING IN HAMMER MURDER

Windsor, Vt., Nov. 9.—Marks, believed to be bloodstains, on the coat of one of the suspects held in connection with the slaying of Miss Cecilia Frances Gulliver, victim of a hammer-wielding murderer, will be examined by State Chemist F. S. Kent at the order of the investigating authorities.

Investigators learned today that Frank L. Cose, employee of the dairy woman, told one of those most gratified over her death, was absent from the farm when she was sent her alive.
Cose told of visiting Miss Gulliver at 11 o'clock Saturday night when she returned home from the movies. He stayed a short time, drove around town for a while and then went home, he said.
On Sunday, Cose revealed, while Miss Gulliver lay broken to death on the sleeping porch of her bungalow.

THE JUDGES TO SEE MODELS OF VICTIMS

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 9.—A life-sized wax effigy of the body of Mrs. Eleanor B. Mills was to be produced in court today at the Hall-Mills trial to show with ghastly vividness, how the murdered choir singer was mutilated by her slayers.

The model was made after Dr. Otto Schultze, of New York, had performed the recent autopsy. Dr. Schultze was expected to testify that not only was Mrs. Mills' throat slashed but her tongue and larynx were pulled from her throat.

In a past case, the actual throat of the dead woman, also will be brought into court. The throat has been carefully preserved.

It was reported that a life-sized effigy of the Rev. Edward W. Hall will be exhibited when medical experts are put on the stand. As far as is known, Dr. Hall's body was not mutilated, but the prosecution will use the model to trace the course of the bullets which ended the pastor's life.
Edward H. Schwartz of the Newark police department, who has testified that a print on Dr. Hall's calling card is that of Willie Stevens, was put through the

'I'M SORRY,' ITALIAN DUCE TELLS FRANCE

Paris, Nov. 9 (A.P.)—Formal written expressions of regret for the anti-French incidents at Ventimiglia and Nice were handed to the French ambassador in Rome today by Benito Mussolini in the form of an "aide memoire."

The French Foreign Office announced that, in view of this action and the satisfactory nature of Foreign Minister Briand's talk with the Italian ambassador in Paris, the government considers the incidents "closed."

This visibly eases the situation between Paris and Rome, as the continued on Page 3, Column 2.

YALE NEWS CLAIMS BOTH COLLEGES ARE TO BLAME

Yale to hold on both Princeton and Harvard equally by the Yale News in its discussion of the "Harvard-Princeton feud," says an Associated Press dispatch from New Haven. The dispatch says it is "unfortunate" that the blame must be divided between two electivates who have been quarreling for years.

The News, getting "to the root of the matter," finds but one opinion is given of the feud, and that is: "Harvard was supercilious and Princeton was affronted" and that the Crimson's editorial purporting to defend Yale interests in the new chapel situation here and the Lamson's obstinate jealousy on Princeton combined to give the outsider an unjust opinion of Harvard.

"If the editors of the Lamson are typical of the attitude which prevails among the Charles, a continued on Page 16, Column 1.

Hub's Little 'First Lady'

Loses Her 'Job'

But Wins a 'Mama'

THEY'RE PALS
Miss Carrie Marjorie Williams, who is to be married to Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols on Nov. 26, is shown here with her niece, Marjorie Edith, who's been the Hub's "first lady."

IN PENSIVE MOOD
This photograph shows Miss Williams in a more serious mood. She is the twin of Mayor Nichols' dead wife, and, like her, is a notable musician. In fact, Mayor Nichols' mother was her teacher.

Marjorie Edith Nichols, as Boston's "first lady," possibly the youngest person holding such honor.

Since her mother's death, Miss Williams, her aunt, has cared for Marjorie and her two brothers.

BRIDE'S SMILE
That the bride-to-be has a ready smile and a merry humor is shown by this photograph of her. She resides at No. 786 Centre street, Jamaica Plain.

'FIRST LADIES' GET TOGETHER
After 3 p. m. on the day after Thanksgiving, little Marjorie's mother's twin sister will be little Marjorie's "mama." Miss Williams and the little girl already are as loving as mother and daughter well could be, and both of them seem delighted over the new arrangement.

CURTIS GIRL OBJECTS TO 'NAGGING'

Mrs. Margaret Maude Curtis, widow of Police Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis, heard her two daughters, Penelope and Margaret, brand her as "a nagging, insulting woman" in Suffolk Probate Court today, and heard the girls say they much preferred living with their uncle, Nelson Curtis, than with her.

The sisters took the stand in Penelope's petition that her mother be removed as trustee of her father's estate, the estate then being solely entrusted to Nelson Curtis. Mrs. Curtis is contesting the petition, and alleges Nelson Curtis is the real instigator of the petition though it is brought in Penelope's name.

GIRLS PAY WAY
Penelope said, and her testimony was corroborated by Margaret, that her mother had always nagged them and criticized them unjustly, but the mother's critical attitude attained its peak on a trip to Honolulu following the death of Commissioner Curtis.

"We planned a trip around the world," said Penelope, "and I doubted that we could afford it. Mother said she would finance it. We wouldn't permit that so we pooled our incomes, Margaret, my salary, an I. When we reached San Francisco mother was overdrawn, so I gave her $100 and Margaret gave her the same amount."

PREDICTS IDEAL WIFE FOR MAYOR OF BOSTON

Like and yet unlike her twin sister, the late wife of Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols, is Miss Carrie Marjorie Williams, who this month is to become the Mayor's second wife.

This is the opinion of the noted Boston woman astrologer, Edna Marie Blake, who has compared the two women by their photographs and analyzed their characteristics by the stars.

"Miss Williams is responsive to emotions, for the goddess of music, art and love were in the ascendant at the time of her birth," said Miss Blake.

"Their photographs show them to have had much in common as to character, yet their personalities appear to be different. Miss Williams is more responsive to emotions, possessed of a disposition that fits her to be the wife of a public man."

"She likes the nice things of life, delights in conversation and is a good listener. She is slow to express an opinion for fear of offending the person involved."

"Miss Williams does not mind travel, while I should say her sister preferred home life. She apparently more determined than her sister was."

"As an adviser she doubtless displays tact and exercises discretion in handling it out."

"Her good nature stands out prominently, and she is generous. She is constitutionally a live wire and has a sunny disposition."

"She should be optimistic and should make an ideal wife."

HUSBAND SEEKS GIRL-WIFE

Mrs. Lucy Aloise, seventeen years old, has been missing from her home in Highland street, Malden, since last Wednesday. According to her husband, Sam Aloise, she ran away because she was discovered there and of going to the high school evening classes in stenography as she did, she went to dances.

Her husband says he has forgiven her and wants her back home. She took with her much of their household furnishings.

Delano Sees Boston As 'NEW CARLISO' World's 3rd Biggest City

By BEET FORD.

A tunnel between North and South terminals. Filling in of South Bay and development of Dorchester Bay, with 30-foot channel for latter.

R. P. Delano

Delano, president of the United 1st Improvement Association and legislative counsel for the Dorchester Board of Trade.

"With proper development of its resources, Boston could easily be made the third largest city in the world," said Mr. Delano. Boston is reaching out and growing. It is slowly, perhaps, but surely meeting its needs.

"An era of optimism has dawned. It has been marked by a shaking off of the old lethargy and by a period of accomplishment which is bound to increase."

"The banking interests, which for years helped develop business all over the country and the world, are waking up to the fact that Boston is a sound place in which to invest."

"The new vision of our bankers and this new blood going into" our banking institutions, the old policy of sending Boston's capital to the far ends of the earth for investments is no longer one of the cardinal rules of our local banks. It has come to be a well recognized fact that legitimate business loans and real estate mortgage money are easier to get here now than heretofore.

"Improved conditions are reflected in the building boom. Office and industrial buildings, factories, docks, stores and homes are springing up on all sides. The increase in home building in Dorchester, Quincy, Allston, Milton and West Roxbury has been particularly notable."

"There has been a decided jump in business. Imports at the Army Base have increased greatly of late. Every effort should be made to develop the port of Boston. One of the first things to be done in this direction is to afford the Grand Trunk Railroad a terminal here."

"That is the surest and swiftest way in which to get bulk cargoes direct from the Great Lakes and the Northwest. The Grand Trunk direct line twenty years ago to gain entrance here and succeeded in getting as far as Palmer, but was blocked by opposition of other railroads."

"The filling in of South Bay and development of Dorchester Bay will not only help industrially and commercially, but will relieve traffic congestion. Dorchester Bay and adjacent water front holds great promise as far as Palmer, but was blocked by opposition of other railroads."

Whether he's Arnoldo Lindt, opera singer, or Harold Linda, "that big Swede that sings like an ash after," his job is still open to him in the night and ready cash under the banner of C. Brown, who and piano mover, where a high note is one-screamed from a boom up and "large" is reminiscent of something with food.

Constance Bowen, the smiling beauty, said she himself today on hearing that his erstwhile employer, Harold Linda, husband of the crew in which Harry Dolan, for instance, was tettering weakling, had enticed a Chicago suitor in his dental as the Egyptian captain in "Aladdin."

'SWEDS' KNOW UNIONS.
But Harold Linda, now this, he is past the safe-moving and piano lifting at noon time, is Arnoldo Lindt, hailed as the new Christus—a dream he held three years ago in Boston while juggling saffron but which was held in good-matured decision that he was to remain in the States.

"That's the Swede knew his onions after all," mused Harry Dolan today when told by the Boston Evening American that Linda was not only the least stout, but the hottest mufin of musical Chicago.

FRATRICIDE AT NIGHT.
"He was a handy boy with his pipes, that lad, even if some of those bunkies did yell at him sometimes to operate on his aqueduct with a blow saw," chimed in Marjorie Aloise, eldest of the Brown sisters, "a damn decent lad that, instead of going round night railing hell he would hold away in his room could rightly call that bidding."

"I remember how he used to be so careful what he ate, never eating cold lunches but always having his hand made him one up and sealing it over a fire at night. Even when he was on the road he would build a fire and heat his lunch. And he never smoked."

"Why don't you get a voice? These guys would yell at him when he started to sing," John McElroy said. "They thought he sang like an ash after, which shows you how far talent can go in this gang—not that we haven't got a lot of it yet, what with other singers but under the lower octaves of a pianer."

"He would never back, 'Don't you guys think you're kidding me?' broke in Marty. "I'm not going to no singing school, I'm going to a conservatory and when you singers are still having 'round piano and saffron, I'll be leading at hundreds of dollars a song."

"And how doing it?"

FOR Acid Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda
For fifty years genuine "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this cleansing waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

SLASHED THROAT OF SINGER WILL ALSO BE PRESENTED

Henry Stevens noted his chin in his hand and watched closely. While Stevens, the most vitally concerned, seemed baffled by the trend of testimony.

The witness was then taken over for direct examination by Prosecutor Simpson.

Q—If the card went through all the conditions described, the print still remained on the card? A—It did.

Q—If the card were placed at the foot of the body and then found and handed to the general McCarter? Say it was, still the print remained on the card? A—It did.

Q—Will you describe conditions at Kline's Hotel when Inspector Fitzpatrick first showed you the card? A—There were several people in the dining room, but no one with Fitzpatrick and me.

Q—Did you take the card when you left or leave it with Fitzpatrick? A—I left it with Fitzpatrick.

Q—It has been indicated or implied by "General" McCarter that during the West investigation of the time you were in possession of finger evidence which you supposed is that true? A—It is not.

Q—When you were associated with the Mott inquiry as a finger print expert? A—I was not associated with the Mott inquiry in that capacity. I was sent to the scene to make a survey November 1.

Found Mule Prints
Q—Did you include in that survey two cedar trees and a stump? A—I did.

Prosecutor Simpson was now leading up to evidence of the investigation when Mrs. Gibson says she tied her mule on the night of the murder.

Q—How long were you on the mule on the night of the murder? A—I did.

Q—Did you produce a card of Dr. Hall's at McCarter's request yesterday? A—I did.

Q—Have you that card? A—I have.

The witness produced it. Q—How many did he give you? A—He was one of several Captain Mason brought to my office.

Q—How many did he give you? A—I don't recall how many.

Q—Did you find the card found at Hall's foot until after the Grand Jury in 1925 completed the investigation? A—No, sir.

Q—When did you get this card? A—After the Grand Jury investigation.

tion at Fitzpatrick's request to compare it and see if I could find a match.

Q—Did you have Willie Stevens' fingerprints in your Newark collection at that time? A—I never saw Willie Stevens' fingerprints.

Q—Did you ever tell anyone you would like to be retained by the defense in addition to its already impending array of counsel? A—I never.

Q—Did you make a map from your survey? A—No, Commissioner or Brennan of Newark insisted me to cease operations.

Q—Who established fingerprint work in this country? A—I suppose I was the first.

Q—Did you take any fingerprints off any automobile in the Lambell case, in which the defendant was electrocuted on fingerprint evidence?

Q—How long after the prints were made were they developed in that case? A—Four days.

Faurot Is Recalled
Q—What is the longest time you ever knew a print to be made of a fingerprint, after it was made? A—Nine months. One may last ten years.

Witness now presented a book of fingerprints and asked if he had read the book as an authority. "I have not," said Schwarz and gave a contemptuous shrug.

Inspector Joseph A. Faurot of the New York police department, one of the outstanding fingerprint experts of the country, was next called for cross-examination by Attorney McCarter.

Q—How long have you been in fingerprint work? A—Twenty odd years.

Q—Continually in that time? A—Except for the time I was acting Commissioner of Police.

Q—In classifying fingerprints the object is to put the fingerprints away so as to refer to it as readily as possible? A—Yes.

Q—After a new print has been read the work is to find if there is a similar print in the collection? A—Yes.

Q—When were you Deputy Commissioner of Police in New York? A—April 1, 1919, to Nov. 1, 1920.

Q—What fingerprint work did you do in 1919, to Nov. 1, 1920? A—The murder case of Rochester three years ago. All the fingerprints were developed in my office and the murderer was convicted on that evidence.

Q—There has criminal identification bureau in New York, who was head of that? A—When I was in charge of the Detective Bureau I was in charge. There was a non-head.

Q—Who was he? A—Lieut. Allen. He was not a practical fingerprint man.

Laugh on Willie
Q—Who had the place of head of the identification bureau during your tenure as deputy commissioner and inspector? A—Lieut. Allen, Lieut. Golden, Captain Shelby, Lieut. Swire.

Q—Was Swire an able man? A—He was a good fingerprint man.

Q—Was Shelby a good man? A—A good officer, not an identification man, however.

Q—Was Golden a good man? A—Yes.

Q—Previous to your retirement as deputy police commissioner who were the men in the criminal identification bureau who did the bulk of the work? A—William Haley, John Higgins, William Hannon, Frederick Rock.

Q—Were they good men? A—Yes—I taught them all, years ago.

Q—Your direct testimony, you stated there were only four types of fingerprint—The arch, the loop, the whorl and the composite. Is that right? A—Yes, four basic types.

Q—How many of the arch type are there in the New York Bureau, when you left the office? A—About 20,000 of the 600,000 prints we have.

Q—The finger prints taken of Willie Stevens the day of his arrest, are those the arch type? A—Yes.

Q—How can you classify them? A—By the height of the arch, by the type of the loop, the formation of the loop, the bifurcation.

The enlarged photographs of the left index finger print taken from Willie Stevens, and the print on Dr. Hall's card were passed to the jury.

Atty. McCarter called the enlarged photograph of Willie's finger print the great "book" and laughed loudly.

In answer to questions Inspector Faurot explained that it was impossible to get absolute assurance from prints taken from the body and from an article because of pressure.

He said that to get the prints exactly the same the pressure must be the same.

Court Is Crowded
Mrs. Jane Gibson, the "pig woman" and star witness for the prosecution in the case, was reported to have spent a comfortable night in the Jersey City Hospital where she has been since Sunday. Five physicians were to examine her again today in an effort to decide when she can testify.

A steady downpour of rain had no effect upon attendance at the trial this morning. Substantial spectators were admitted to the courtroom and all available seats were quickly filled.

The defendants came in the courtroom exactly at 10 o'clock and quickly took their places near the defense counsel table. Mrs. Hall was dressed in black, as usual. Willie and Harry Stevens wore dark gray suits. Mrs. Hall and Willie carried dark glasses and wore face lawyers. Henry said nothing.

ADMITTS KILLING WOMAN WHO 'ANNOYED' HIM

New York, Nov. 9 (A.P.)—De- claring that the "annoyed man" had "had to get rid of her," Patrick McCafferty, assistant superintendent of a fashionable apartment house in Flushing, today admitted he had killed Nina Fabian, 30, a nurse, according to the police.

McCafferty, police said, declared he struck the woman with a baton during an argument in the basement apartment in which they lived

Woman Calls Night Work Healthy; Sees No "Moral Risks"

New York, Oct. 9 (A.P.)—Praise for night work by women comes from Mrs. Ella M. Gibson, printer. If it affects the health at all, it improves it and as for the moral risks the male worker is much more exposed than she is, she asserted with belief.

She gave her views to the State Industrial Survey Commission, together. The blow killed her instantly. McCafferty said he had been drinking and wasn't altogether responsible for what he did. Police said McCafferty told of dismembering the body and burning all except the torso in the apartment house furnace.

COURT ERRED IN WILLET CASE, LAWYER SAYS

One of the most powerful legal advisers ever to appear in a Suffolk county court passed inside the bar enclosure of the Supreme Court to day when the full bench heard the arguments for a new trial of the famous Willett case, in which a Norfolk county jury gave George F. Willett and Edmund H. Sears a verdict of more than $100,000 against Boston bankers.

Attorney George L. Mayberry, counsel for Sewall H. Freeman of F. B. Mosley & Co., one of the defendants, opened the proceedings to day by calling the attention of the court to what he termed an error in the plaintiff's brief.

Said the lawyer: "The brief states that all the defendants filed motions for a new trial on the ground of an error in law. This is not so. The ground is solely against the weight of evidence and the excessive damages."

The attorney attacked the rulings of Judge Christopher T. Callahan, who presided at the jury trial. He said the justice erred when he permitted the plaintiffs to show the profits of the American Felt Company from 1913 to 1924.

"I objected to that ruling," said the lawyer, "on the ground that the profits were made under a new management and under different conditions. The court overruled my objection and admitted all records. We thought this was wrong and we ask this court to find so."

"In the same matter we wanted to explain conditions under which the profits were made, and Judge Callahan asked for an offer of proof. I drew up an offer of proof, but the court refused it."

Atty. Frederick E. Snow, counsel for Kidder, Peabody & Company and Robert Winsor, made a comprehensive review of the entire case from its beginning. He said the issue was simple. The lawyer said the banks had had no confidence in the Willett-Sears Company when that company sought a loan of $5,000,000, and for that reason all the banks insisted on new management, but making the loan.

PASSENGER AIR SERVICE TO COME NEXT

New York, Nov. 9 (A.P.)—The first step has been taken in creation of a network of airplane express routes, with machines flying night and day to speed delivery of packages once carried by the pony express of pioneer days.

The National Air Transport, Inc., has signed a contract with the American Railway Express to begin delivery by April 15, 1927, of packages by air between New York and Dallas, via Chicago and intermediate points.

It is contemplated that express packages may sometimes be shipped in the same planes with air mail. It is expected that an entire day may be saved in package delivery on each of the two routes.

The contract calls for operation of two air express routes, the first between New York and Chicago, with stops at Baltimore, Pa., Cleveland and Bryan, O., and the second between Chicago and Dallas, with stops at St. Louis, Mo., Omaha, Neb. and Fort Worth.

Of the commercial air system, as outlined by the air mail, Howard Coffin, president of the National Air Transport, Inc., says:

"In May the first link of the system was inaugurated, carrying the air mail between Chicago and Dallas. This line has been very satisfactory. It has flown approximately 350,000 miles without an accident. It has completed 92.5 per cent. of its scheduled mileage. It has lost no mail and injured no people."

Among the efforts and stockholders of the Air Transport Company are: C. M. Kory, president of the Curtis Airplane & Motor Co.; Charles L. Lawrence, president of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation; Cresswell Dillon, Glenn H. Curtiss, William A. Rockefeller of the National Air Transport, Inc., and Philip H. Wrigley of Chicago.

NEW TAX PLAN

was a political one, but it was said that Mr. Coolidge felt politics must be avoided at all hazards.

If the tax credit proposal becomes involved in a political controversy in the short season, it will be difficult, in the President's opinion, to work out any relief for the taxpayers at this time.

The president thinks the same means of action by Congress would be that pursued by the last Congress, when a non-partisan agreement was worked out for passage of the revenue act.

7 Senators Confer With Coolidge at Luncheon

Washington, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—The first of a series of conferences with congressional leaders was held by President Coolidge around the White House luncheon table today.

He invited seven Republican Senators, Senator of Utah, Curtis of Kansas, Borah of Idaho, Johnson of California, Reed of Pennsylvania, McNary of Oregon and Deneen of Illinois.

It was understood the President planned to discuss particularly his proposal for a 2½ per cent tax on profits, which faces opposition within

Bob Goodwin Weds
Seven Times, Beats
His Uncle Nat

San Francisco, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—Texas Bob Goodwin, who has beaten the record of his Uncle Nat for marriages, is going to do it again with a new twist.

Nat married five different ones. Bob has married six, but intends to wed his sixth a second time.

Betty Markle forgot final divorce papers involving somebody else before becoming Mrs. Bob. Now an annulment and remarriage are necessary.

The administration circle as from the Republican insurgent group.

The White House plan was attacked by Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, leader of the Senate progressives, who declared it would be "poor business management" to refund taxes already paid while the nation was deeply in debt.

A similar view was expressed by McNary of Oregon, an administration "regular."

Norris, who will lead the insurgent "balance of power" in the Senate, the Seventeenth Congress, proposed that the $200,000,000 surplus be expected in the treasury by the end of the year, be used to help retire the public debt. This plan was suggested by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon a year ago and the Norris announcement marks the first time on record that the insurgent leader has endorsed a financial policy laid down by Mellon.

BACKED BY McNARY.

"Both Republicans and Democrats are trying to fool the people," Norris said. "Leaders on both sides are playing politics. Let us see what is in the treasury at the end of the fiscal year, next June. If there is a surplus then, well and good. We can reduce taxes at the following session of Congress."

McNary said: "I think it would be better to use this surplus for necessary improvements throughout the country than to return it to a few people who have already adjusted their finances after paying this year's taxes."

It might be a good time, too, while the nation is enjoying unusual prosperity, to pay off some of our indebtedness, just as a private corporation would do."

NEW YORK EVENING
JOURNAL

☞ The New York Evening Journal
gives unequalled opportunity for sales concentration

Selling is like warfare—you have to hit hard and often, with a concentration of strength behind each blow. Napoleon, the greatest soldier of all time, won countless battles that way. He always struck in one strategic spot, with every man and gun available.

The key-position

In national merchandising, there is one spot which is more important than any other. The New York market is the key-position to national selling. Here, within a fifty-mile area, there are 9,000,000 consumers—more than there are in all New England. Here there is more money than in seven large mid-western states combined.

Here is pre-eminently the richest prize, the most desirable goal, in America.

In the New York market, the Evening Journal occupies a situation that is absolutely unique. Its circulation of 700,000—the largest evening paper circulation in the world—is more than twice that of the next largest evening paper in New York. It is greater than the next two combined—plus 100,000! Every evening it is taken into 700,000 homes, in which live approximately 3,000,000 consumers—one-third of the entire population of this area!

Power with economy

There is no other evening paper in the New York market which enables you to reach, at one stroke, so large a percentage of the total possible consumers in this great field. The New York Evening Journal gives concentration; it saves your money by utilizing every cent of it in carrying your message to a productive prospect.

A compact market

The New York Evening Journal dominates the most highly organized of all trading areas. Nowhere else will you find such concentration of outlets, such closely knit centers of merchandising, such scientifically arranged trade routes and channels. Salesmen working this territory see the maximum number of prospects with the minimum traveling expense. Transportation is cheap and fast. Distribution is thorough and effective.

The 9,000,000 people living in the New York district are consumers of quality goods. They have a high standard of living. They make good money and they are willing to spend it to get a good article. Every year hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of merchandise is consumed by these metropolitan dwellers—the most consistent and profitable customers in the world.

Yet important as this key-position is, it is the easiest of all to enter—if you know the way in. For those who believe in their product and in themselves, the New York area presents almost inexhaustible sales opportunities. Here is the world's richest market. John Wanamaker New York

Invested over a million dollars in the New York Evening Journal during the past six years

AN IDEA of the appreciation of John Wanamaker New York for the purchasing power and responsiveness of more than two million New York Evening Journal readers may be had from the fact that during the past six years this store has invested over ONE MILLION DOLLARS in this one newspaper.

Wanamaker Store News has become as much a part of the New York Evening Journal as the news and features. Out of 300 publication days last year the merchandising news of this house appeared in 245 issues.

The New York Evening Journal carries the day-to-day store news of the Wanamaker store into over 700,000 homes in New York and suburbs. This newspaper has more than double the circulation of any other New York evening paper—it goes home, stays home and is read by every member of the family.

It is a policy of Wanamaker's to reach out for the greatest possible number of customers throughout the metropolitan retail trading area. They invest more money in the New York Evening Journal than in any other New York morning or evening newspaper. This fact alone, is the most convincing endorsement of the intensive coverage, reader-interest and productiveness of the largest evening circulation in Greater New York and suburbs.

Coast Guardsman's 'Widow' Tells Tale of Tragic Suffering

The tragedy of four young women, made widows when their husbands, expert machinists, were killed in the fire of early morning held out by the rum-runners, and converted by the promise of protection from the Coast Guard, was detailed by one of the widows in the Boston Evening American.

This woman, said that her husband was killed in the explosion of the suspected rum-runner, "Constantine," which was the whole matter, and held no desire for vengeance or investigation. She told how her husband was led into the scheme that cost him his life.

Through defense in her and due to the investigation authorities, who are coming the Coast Guard service all along the New England coast for evidence of collusion with rum-runners, the Boston Evening American did not disclose her name.

Now, however, comes Mrs. John Martin, who demands an investigation, and desires that her name be used in the case that has rocked the Coast Guard service to its foundations. Her husband, it is known, was the Constantine when that launch went out to the rum-runner, Patrick and Michael. Whether he was on board on the fatal trip is still a mystery.

By MRS. JOHN MARTIN (Copyright, 1926, by Boston Evening American. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.)

I am a destitute widow today with two small children—I am a widow—then they came to me and changed my life. I was a widow when they came to me and changed my life.

My husband was the Constantine when that launch went out to the rum-runner, Patrick and Michael. Whether he was on board on the fatal trip is still a mystery.

Without funds

If John was here today, and the "Constantine" was here today, whether he perished with his ship on the fatal trip, whether he was on board on the fatal trip is still a mystery.

'Hated All Crime,' Says Wife

"John never thought of breaking the law," said Mrs. Martin. "He hated crime of all kinds and only sought to do his duty and was proud to be of service to his country in maintaining law on sea or land."

He was a Lieutenant's commission with the Coast Guard.

Instead of the happiness that should be in our home I am today practically penniless, with a sick baby to care for and not one cent compensation from the government. All because my husband listened to the false and dangerous promises of his superior officers.

I have tried a hundred ways to determine if my husband still lives. I have visited every morgue along the coast from Boston to New York. I have gotten down on my knees before officers at the East Boston base and begged for an investigation.

My only reward was scolds and jeers.

I have prayed to my Creator for strength to help me carry on for my two boys' sake with the result that I now face extinction from my home.

For months I have been unable to pay the rent and my promises that "something good will happen," "something good will happen."

'HELD PRISONER'

My only hope has been the persistent reports that my husband has been seen alive. Every now and then they come to me and change my life.

My husband was the Constantine when that launch went out to the rum-runner, Patrick and Michael. Whether he was on board on the fatal trip is still a mystery.

Without funds

If John was here today, and the "Constantine" was here today, whether he perished with his ship on the fatal trip, whether he was on board on the fatal trip is still a mystery.

PASSED ME UP

"Fancy what a terrible blow it was to me. He wanted me to believe my husband had survived the explosion only to desert his loved ones and go off with another woman."

"Wife," that woman, when reached me I hurried to the captain and demanded to know a story. He grew very red when he saw me and tried to brush me aside.

"Your husband was killed with the others, there was not a chance he could have survived," he told me. "I don't want to be troubled with his affairs longer."

"A woman gorgeously gowned, whom I presume was his wife, arrived in a big automobile and spoke to him. And while I was standing there with tears streaming down my face he left me without another word and drove away."

A CLEVER SEAMAN

"My husband was a clever seaman as ever captained a ship across the Atlantic. He served his country in the World War, and was honorably discharged with a commission. Then he joined the United States Shipping Fleet. Several years ago he returned to become a member of the Coast Guard. He was first stationed at St. John's and later at Boston."

"At Boston he was assigned to the C. G. then in command of a Captain John, and the captain grew very intimate in the long days they were at sea. The C. G. was, of course, creating the New England coast for rum runners."

"Many the rum runner my husband helped to capture. As I have said he hated anyone who was bent on breaking the law."

"He was a Lieutenant's commission with the Coast Guard."

Instead of the happiness that should be in our home I am today practically penniless, with a sick baby to care for and not one cent compensation from the government. All because my husband listened to the false and dangerous promises of his superior officers.

ing the law. It was his duty to go bootleggers and hijackers, and he did."

PAY WAS SMALL

"His pay was small, even small as when he was a captain for an individual concern. But he was sure his country and he was happy in doing so."

Then strange things began happening on the patrol boats. His wife, who was duty it was to protect the land against law-breakers, joined the army of rum-runners. They were in collusion with them while still working for the government.

"John Martin at first despised these men and to all except me he kept his mouth shut. But I saw he was growing disheartened with the lot."

"I don't want the money for myself, but for you and the boys I want it," he said me frequently. And always I would urge him to cast such thoughts from his head. In worry for should he turn rum-runner he would be no longer an officer. He told me he would have preferred to accept the addition of a half hour to the working day."

CHAUNCEY GROOMED AS TRIPLE THREAT

CAMERA SHOWS HARVARD ENDS MUST IMPROVE TO HOLD BROWN'S GREATEST OF WING TEAMS. IN CHECK

ON WAY TO TOUCHDOWN

Caulkins, Princeton quarter, is shown starting on his run which resulted in the only touchdown in Saturday's game. Note the Harvard ends, who will have to face Broda and Towle, Brown stars, this week. Meadows was taken out of the play completely, and Sayles, a secondary man, is nearer the runner than Strong.

Horween Grooms Henry Chauncey as Triple Threat

By TED LYNCH.

"A tall youth. Awkward. Can throw a forward pass any reasonable distance and with great accuracy. Has some natural ability as a punter. A poor tackler and very poor interferer. Almost useless as a ball carrier."

Boy who started the season with this rating is being groomed as the man to put the Harvard offense out of a slump. He has no impressive record, but he has a reputation for being a triple threat. Horween, Princeton's coach, has decided to make Chauncey a punter, a passer, and a tackler. He has been given the job of punting in the last two games, and he has shown some promise. He has also been used as a passer and a tackler. Horween is confident that Chauncey can become a triple threat and lead the Harvard offense to victory.

Exeter Makes Ready for Grid Clash With Andover

Exeter, N. H., Nov. 9. Exeter is getting set for its 46th annual football game with Phillips Andover in that town on Saturday afternoon, and as the days pass, the contest is increasing.

The footballers of the school believe Exeter has a chance to bring up the winning flag, which has been in evidence for the past several years. Exeter has been a strong team in the past, and they are confident that they can win this year's game. They have been practicing hard and are ready for the challenge.

Tufts Quintet Faces Busy Season

Professor C. P. Houston, director of Tufts University's basketball team, has announced that the team will have a very busy season. They will be playing several games in the coming weeks. The team is confident that they can win all of their games and bring home a championship.

In this play, neither Harvard nor Andover has carried out his assignment although there appears to be no reason for their failure. The Horween system calls for a charging line but the secondary has charged farther than the ends. Miller is on the ground, having missed the elusive Jake, but Meadows hasn't yet passed the line of scrimmage and Saltonstall is out of the play.

Powers Signs Two of Ice Stars

Glenn Kidd Powers of the Boston Bruins has signed a contract with the New York Rangers for the 1926-27 season. Powers is one of the best players in the league and is expected to be a star for the Rangers.

Tunney Tells of Blow That Beat Dempsey in Title Battle

This is the thirty-first chapter of Gene Tunney's own story—written by himself—of his life and fighting career, written exclusively for the Boston Evening American.

By GENE TUNNEY
World's Heavyweight Champion

WE met, Jack Dempsey and myself—the champion and I—the challenger—beneath the thirty-six Kleig lights. About us was gathered the mightiest concourse of sporting fans ever congregated. We had our bathtubs on, and the champion extended his hand, saying:

"How are you, Gene?"

"Very well, indeed, Jack," I replied.

During the period, Dempsey was tapping his hands, he had been working his face into the scowl that had struck terror into many pugilistic hearts.

Usually Dempsey never looks at an opponent once he has entered the ring. This time, however, he glanced up hastily, scowling over at me. I, who look at an opponent or not, just as it suits my fancy, met the scowl with a smile. I tried hard to make it look like a winning smile.

Then we were brought together for instructions. As we left to go to our corners, preparatory to hearing the opening gong, I said:

"May the better man win, Jack."

This drew no answer from the champion, who looked like a little brown grackle. He had white on his eyebrows to protect his vision from the glaring lights overhead. I forgot all about crowds, trainers, money, everything but the business in hand.

During the action of a fight, one does not think of much than how, when and where to hit, and often these things are reflex actions, rather than conscious thoughts. It is during the intermissions of one minute each that a boxer thinks of various matters other than the act of boxing. At the bell, the boxer's attention, bent over in almost a full crouch, rushed me into a corner and I missed with that short right. Dempsey then rushed into a clinch and we broke up. Jack came to a halt with a left to the body. I countered with a left to the head and a right to the body. Dempsey was trying to hurry matters, but seemed to be lagging.

Short Right to Jaw Decides Issue

The champion, frowning and serious, rushed again. This time I stopped him from clinching. On his next rush I put in the sock which I believe definitely turned the fight in my direction. I put a hard, short right to his jaw. It was almost an uppercut. It seemed to root Jack to the spot. Only a real champion could have taken that blow and not slide. I don't think anyone ever could "take them" like Dempsey.

Dempsey, now stung, tried to slug. I countered him. He tried to box. I countered him. He tried to clinch. I countered him. I opened up Dempsey's peculiar shield, out of which he always in apt to rise and say anything to slow and after that I began to punch the champion across the ring, adding in lefts and rights to this bout.

I am told it is the first time Dempsey ever broke ground for anyone. But he was breaking it for me. I had proved that I was the better man.

The fight is history now. I will not bore you by going into every blow and every round. I knew as I sat, perfectly from, in my corner after that first round that I would win. I had proved that I could hurt him. Anyone whom I can hit and hurt, I can defeat.

The rain began to fall. It was to continue until late that night. I don't need it particularly, but the rain drops were rather soothing and although it meant our boxing anything but secure, I rather enjoyed the experience.

I must recount the fourth round, because in that round the "Maraca Man" made his one bid.

He had been trying all his old-time hipp-hurp tactics, his half crouch, his rush and his wallops, but now he was getting mighty puzzled and his face was beginning to be bruised a little. For a moment in that fourth round looked a bit better for the "Punchy" boy.

Dempsey had rushed in for a left to the body. He gave me all he had in the body, but it was not bothering me. I was in the pink of condition and could not be bothered by anything. I had really believed, Jack put a left to the face and I gave him a solid uppercut to the jaw. Jack's right eye was bleeding profusely by now from a cut.

Then I thought I would try a right to the body. It was my one mistake of the fight. Nobody gets to Jack's body with right, as a rule, and says on his feet. But I tried and in the wink of an eye Dempsey had snatched his famous left hook.

It missed the "button" and landed on my larynx. Well, I was rather dazed from this as it all but paralyzed my head. I was hours for a week afterward from the effects of that mighty wallop. I had really been on the ropes and then cleared my head.

Well, that was a blow that I have shook the ring till this. I came right back and hammered the champion as I wished. I failed to knock this remarkable man out in the ten rounds we were scheduled to go, but I want to tell you that he WAS A CHAMPION, every bit of him. However, I believe I could have dropped him in another two or three rounds.

Tunney to Disclose Future Plans

They tell me Jack was sobbing as he left the ring. We shook hands and there was quite a scene enacted in the waterlogged ring as my friends clamored through the ropes. I am informed that Jack all but collapsed in his dressing room.

His face was a dreadful sight to see and was puffed and blue and out. But he is over to his credit, he refused to shed that fighting head with a towel, but with his lowered countenance bare, he walked proudly back to his room, still a champion in his heart, and he always will be.

So, Gene Tunney, coming from an unknown position in Greenwich Village and France, and going into the ring on the short end of odds of 1 to 1 and sometimes 1 to 1 was heavyweight champion of the world. In my next and last chapter, I will try to tell you my own views along certain lines, why I cannot be married while I am champion and what I intend to do.

JACK CROWN IN UNLIKELY FACE INDIANS

By JOHN R. GILLOOLY

Boston College will probably be without the services of its star ball carrier and punter, Jack Crown, when it stacks up against the Haskell Indians at Braves Field Saturday.

Jack suffered a severe leg injury in the contest with Villanova. His underpinning in badly swollen. Another grader would have retired from the game with a similar wound, but not the fighting Crown.

The "Eagle" will have a hard time making the heights of victory without Crown's services. How the natives are going to escape a scalping without the "Hindoo" boy, "the" "the" to do the punting is a mystery.

Suggs to Try for Kayo in Finnegan Bout

By JACK CONWAY.

"NEW BEDFORD calling." David Luniansky, manager of Chick Suggs, who battles Honeyboy Finnegan in a ten-round bout for the world's featherweight championship at a Suffolk A. A. show at the New Boston Arena on next Monday night, was on the other end of the wire.

"I want to tip you that Suggs will not only defeat Finnegan, but that he will knock him out," came the voice from the Whaling City.

"You know I have never told you before that Suggs was certain to win," continued Luniansky, "but I am as strong as a bull and will not be fooled by a word of Suggs' own."

The new George Dixon is training in Lowell, where he works his game. I journey to Lowell today and will then have a better line on Finnegan's condition.

It is not likely that there will be any serious fighting, but Suggs is a very strong fighter and will not be easily defeated.

Grid Officials Mistakes Fatal | Yale Grads Sore Slag and Geology Tough for Tad

GRAND STAND OFFICIALS GET BUSY

SUGGESTIONS about football officiating are coming in faster than bootleggers. Most of the suggestions have never played football, and would be killed if they ever stepped close to real math, but that doesn't deter them in the matter of offering remedies. Some of the cures proposed to do away with official mistakes are quite interesting. They come as a result of Slagle's famous drop kick. One youth says that a stenographer for the referee would settle everything. The stenographer could keep an accurate tabulation of downs and things as he followed the game up and down the field, and inform the ref. whenever the latter threatened to make an error. This, incidentally, would provide Saturday work for some young man, or perhaps one of the athletic girl models. It is also suggested that the officials telephone to the press box every few moments to get the real dope on the number of plays and such like things. An efficiency expert, in another opinion, would fix things perfectly. The efficiency boys admit that they can do anything a little better than anybody else.

A hard boiled correspondent from Hastyville thinks that all officials should be done away with. They hold up the game, he complains, and prevent the game from being really exciting. He says that if they had them. A game without officials, he believes, would fill any stadium at $25 per copy.

Football with the average fan isn't to be considered in a frivolous manner. It is sort of a religion, and humor or cynicism have no place. The official is a complement to his working job, and is financially set for life. But even Tad can stand the howling of the old grade if he's not been a few more games.

There is no immediate action in the Yale future, with the fiery Tigers and a sturdy Harvard team on the program. The future has been created more for the future. Now the boys are scrambling for the abolition of severe practice, howling about the price of tickets, and howling the passing of good old days.

The old grads are the world's best bawlers. First they deplore, and when that doesn't improve a situation, they bewail. When they mark that stage, it's time for the head coach to look for a five more, or a soft spot to land on. The boys who used to be at Yale are beginning to think that as a coach Tad Jones is a very fine old dealer.

BROWN'S IRON TEAM CANNOT AFFORD TO GET RUSTY.

JARE SLAGLE will put in an intensive week at geology, getting ready for Yale.

YALE BODY CRIPPLED FOR TIGER GAME

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 8.—Yale will send a body shattered squad to Princeton Saturday, but Head Coach Tad Jones believes that the only course possible was to take desperate chances by sending the injured regulars from scrimmaging each week, following their loss kept from play against Maryland.

It is unlikely that there will be any serious fighting, but Suggs is a very strong fighter and will not be easily defeated.

Yale train is small, the head coach said: "Then some small outfit knocked it dead."

TAD JONES HEARS ANVIL CLANG

A FOOTBALL revolution at Yale may be looked for. Three defeats in a row have been tied to the Bullfinch's tail. That never happened in Yale football history before. The Blue team hasn't scored a point while the three beatings, and disgust and rage are prevalent in New Haven.

Tad Jones, head coach, has the sort of a contraband that his finger as long as he can reach. He has built up a successful club business in New Haven, as a complement to his coaching job, and is financially set for life. But even Tad can stand the howling of the old grade if he's not been a few more games.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

ACCORDING to the latest governmental report, every person in the United States was supposed to have in the neighborhood of $50.

LATER statistics showed us that over a million people were about $47 short and another million inhabitants weren't even in the neighborhood of $50.

ANYBODY can make a dollar a day, but it takes a dollar and a half to keep it.

QUARTERS and dimes go so fast you'd think they were made out of quick silver.

THE Treasury Department ought to make the show off of stamps and put it on greenbacks, and maybe a few of them would stick to our wallets.

CURRENCY may be dirty, but most of us don't have on it long enough to get infected.

EVERYTHING is so high today that even a germ has a hard time living on a five-dollar bill.

WHENEVER you find a microbe on a nickel, the chances are he's on a dime.

HENRY FORD used to make a hundred dollars a minute and then daylight saving came along and raised his salary.

MONEY won't buy happiness, but it'll supply the traveling expenses to go out and look for it.

YEARS ago George Washington threw a dollar and it went across the Potomac River. Today it would take ten bucks to make the same trip.

THIS was a great feat and now France is trying to get Couligue to throw a lot of them across the Atlantic Ocean.

IT'S terrible the way the greenbacks slip out of our hands. The mint must put vanishing cream in them instead of starch.

IF money talks, the average pocket-book is speechless.

THE world owes everybody a living, but nobody else is always trying to collect it.

THERE'S enough money in this country for all of us, but the trouble is, they arrest you if they catch you putting your hands on it.

AMERICA is the richest nation in the world and we also have the best poorhouses.

THE WISE SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON—BY HELEN ROWLAND

NOW cometh the season, my dreams, with a hymn of Thanksgiving. Oh, Lord, with the carefree Bachelor, I thank Thee that another Silly Season hath passed over our heads.

I am still a SINGLE-FOOTER! That I have come through the test of June moons and September sunsets, and still retain my liberty, my bachelor flat, and all my pet habits.

I don't blame you! I'd like to see GENE TUNNEY OR OWEN A STEAM YATCH BUT SMOKING DOPE GIVES ME A HEADACHE! That I shall not have to eat my Thanksgiving dinner with HIGH people!

With the weekly household bills, nor my soul harried as the thoughts of facing a woman's Christmas shopping. That I am responsible for NO one's charge accounts, at this the merry shopping season!

HEY, FRAGRANCE! HOW'S THE BETTING IN THE 6TH? EYEBOD'S GET DEN LASH DOLLAR ON INDIAN PRINCE! CEPT ME AY I BET SIX BITS!

I DON'T LIKE TO SEE GENE TUNNEY OR OWEN A STEAM YATCH BUT SMOKING DOPE GIVES ME A HEADACHE! That I shall not have to eat my Thanksgiving dinner with HIGH people!

WELL, HOW ABOUT THESE DIAMONDS? THEREY ALL I'VE GOT LEFT OF ME MOTHER'S ESTATE! AS SOON AS I SAW YA I THOUGHT YA WAS IN MOURNING OR ON PAROLE OR SOMETHING!

ALLRIGHT! I'LL TAKE THESE AS SECURITY FOR A $1000 BET! THE Treasury Department ought to make the show off of stamps and put it on greenbacks, and maybe a few of them would stick to our wallets.

instantly awaited by NO one save my dog, who welcomes me with yaps of joy, and sniffs NO
QUESTIONS.
That my Sunday morning grouches and hangovers may be nursed at my leisure and dispelled in peace and solitude and the sweet serenity of the whole newspaper.

That my soul harried as the thoughts of facing a woman's Christmas shopping.
That I am responsible for NO one's charge accounts, at this the merry shopping season!

That my dinner hour is not a fixed and inflexible thing, which continues all goddeth my conscience—but a movable feast, which may be postponed until the eleventh hour, and then arranged joyfully over the telephone.

That the sound of my latchkey is instantly awaited by NO one save
my dog, who welcomes me with
yaps of joy, and sniffs NO
QUESTIONS.
